Qosqo, Cusco, located in a place that corresponds to mystical, mythological reasons, of interconnection with the cosmos and surrounded by 12 Apus (Sacred Mountains) and in a linear and equidistant middle of the two main Apus: Ausangate and Salkantay. Present-day Cusco was the capital of the Inca Empire and was considered the center of their world. Cusco, a city shaped like a puma, where the roads lead to the four cardinal directions that connect much of South America starting from this place.
